

Add
Utters
Shoshones
Bannocks

ATROVENT
(ipratropium bromide)
INHALATION AEROSOL

AZTEC WARRIOR ADAPTED
FROM CODEX MENDOZA

VISITOR'S GUIDE TO THE AZTEC WORLD

Produced by the Cartographic Division
National Geographic Society
GILBERT M. GROSVENOR, PRESIDENT
NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC MAGAZINE

WILBUR E. GARRETT, EDITOR
RICHARD J. DARLEY, CHIEF CARTOGRAPHER
JOHN F. SHUPE, ASSOCIATE CHIEF CARTOGRAPHER

WASHINGTON DECEMBER 1980

Design: John F. Dorr, Elizabeth Wolf
Map Compilation: Mary C. Latham, Jon A. Sayre
Illustrations: Charles L. Stern; Text: Louis de la Haba
Research: Susan Day Fuller, Julie Franklin Jones
Principal Consultant: Henry B. Nicholson,
University of California at Los Angeles

VALLEY OF MEXICO

SEVEN THOUSAND FEET above sea level and walled on three sides by mountain ranges, the Valley of Mexico has provided a favorable environment for man since the Glacial epoch. Ice Age hunters stalked mammoths along the boggy margins of its lakes, now a fraction of their former extent. Later, hunters and gatherers developed

